Trustees Consider Voluntary ROTC

A committee report calling for a voluntary ROTC program at URI, which was passed by the Faculty Senate Jan. 18, will be submitted today to the Board of Trustees of State Colleges by Dr. Harold W. Browning, acting URI president.

Dr. Browning said he thinks the board will not take any vote on the matter at today's meeting but will probably hold it for consideration.

The report, called the "minority report of the special faculty committee on the ROTC program," was passed by the Faculty Senate by a voice vote after the senate rejected a majority report calling for compulsory ROTC by a vote of 18 to 10.

Both reports were written by a committee of five, two of whom supported the voluntary ROTC program.

Members of the committee were

Dr. George A. Ballentine, Prof. Kendall Moulthrop and Dr. William D. Metz who supported compulsory ROTC. Dr. Ralph W. England and Dr. Harrison L. Flint supported the voluntary ROTC system.

The committee was appointed last Spring by Dr. Milton Salomon who was then chairman of the Faculty Senate.

"I tried to set up a balanced committee," Dr. Salomon said yesterday. "And the fact that there was a split on the ROTC question shows that the committee was balanced."

"I thought the students should be given a chance to prove themselves on this thing. They have the chance. Now it's up to them," he said.

The vote came after two years of discussion on the ROTC matter by various campus groups including the Student Senate and the American Association of University Professors.

The extensive Student Senate report called for a voluntary program last March and the AAUP urged a similar system last May.

The latest action on the ROTC question was the second time the Faculty Senate considered the matter.

Last May, the Faculty Senate approved a report which proposed that the ROTC and the men's physi-

URI Senate To Support Fund Drive

The URI Student Senate last Monday night voted to establish a fund drive committee to initiate a program to raise money to support the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC). Albert Szymanski was named chairman.

The purpose of the URI committee is to make the necessary arrangements for raising money to help meet the financial needs of the SNCC. The money will be used to help pay fines, secure legal assistance, publicize events in the South and throughout the nation, and purchase mimeograph machines, textbooks and other material needed in their voter registration campaign.

SNCC was formed shortly after the first sit-in in Greensboro, North Carolina in February, 1960. It is an almost exclusively Southern student group composed primarily of Negroes.

The group has begun a long-range program in voter registration and non-violence in Mississippi. With the help of high school students, citizenship classes in which local Negroes were prepared to take the inequitable literacy test—interpreting "reasonably" a section of the Mississippi constitution—were organized.

According to figures released by the organization, 13 counties in Mississippi have no registered Negro voters. In the entire state, which is 44 percent Negro, only six percent are eligible voters.

SNCC has been strongly backed

International Ball to Highlight Weekend; 'Evening In The Far East' Set as Theme

"An Evening in the Far East" is the theme of the third annual International Ball to be held Saturday night from 8:30 to midnight at Eaney Gym. The dance will be sponsored by the All Nations Club and is open to all students and faculty and staff members.

Music will be provided by Tony Abbott and his orchestra. Attire is semi-formal and those attending who have costumes depicting their native country are asked to wear them.

The festivities at the dance will include a composite view of the celebrations of Cambodia, China, India, Japan, Korea, Pakistan, the Philippines and Vietnam. The gym will be decorated with paintings, posters and flags from the different countries.

Highlighting the dance will be crowning of the queen of the ball. Everyone who attends the dance will vote for the queen, who will be chosen from representatives of 15 URI women's housing units.

Various oriental ceremonies will be depicted in the coronation of the queen. The queen and her court, during the traditional grand march, will be escorted by women students from China, Japan, Korea and Thailand. Two body guards holding fans and one holding an umbrella will symbolize the regal customs of China and India.

A Chinese pavillion will serve as a throne for the queen. Her court will stand in a special forum that symbolizes humility and allegiance to the queen according to the ancient oriental rites.

The coronation itself will be based on the ceremonies of India and Pakistan. The royal entertainment in honor of the queen will be performed by a Korean dancer.

"Talking letters" will be recorded by the South County branch of the American Red Cross for foreign students at the dance. The discs will be provided by the Western chapter without cost to the students.

Dharam Ablashi is general chairman of the ball. Co-chairman is Martha Ulans. Committees and their chairmen are: Program—Patrick Ogot; Tickets—Jean Jackson; Publicity—Pablo Fong; Decorations—Christina Pacheco, Sona Basur; Checking—Rei Ito; Coronation—Elias Wakeem. Master of ceremonies will be Gholam Kazemian.

Invitations to the dance have been sent to foreign students at the other colleges and universities in the state.

Tickets for the ball are $3 per couple and may be purchased at the Memorial Union desk, and from members of the All-Nations Club, Dr. Milton Salomon in Woodward Hall and Dr. Robert Aukerman in Independence Hall.

Coffee Hour Today On Anti-Semitism

Sydney Rabinowitz, Providence director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, will speak on "Anti-Semitism Today" at today's coffee hour, sponsored by Hillel in the Union Lounge at 4 p.m.

He will discuss anti-semitism and its implications in the United States.

General Education Program Proposed To Require More Humanities Studies

A basic "program in general education" will require all URI undergraduates to take more courses in natural and formal sciences, communications skills, social sciences and the humanities if a proposal of the faculty senate committee on general education becomes part of the university course requirements.

The proposal, formulated after two years of study by two committees, will be presented to the general faculty for approval. The proposal recommends at least nine credits in each of the four subject matter groups be taken by students during the course of their college education.

Miss Nancy Potter, associate professor of English, is committee chairman. Other members are David H. Freeman, associate professor of philosophy; Francis H. Lavalley, associate professor of civil engineering; George E. Osborne, professor of pharmacy and Edwin H. Hallenbeck, director of the division of institutional research.

Since many courses at URI already offer a balance of extensive and intensive information in the areas of study, the committee rejected the idea of constructing new courses.

In the group of 25 natural and formal sciences, seven courses are offered in chemistry, six in mathematics, two each in physics, biology and geology, and one each in astronomy, bacteriology, botany, oceanography, philosophy and zoology.

In the group classed as "communications skills" there are 29 courses of which four each are in English, German, Italian, Russian and Spanish, two in speech, two in statistics and one in journalism.

The social science group includes 16 courses of which four are in history, three each in economics and geography, and two each in political science, psychology and sociology.

In the humanities there are 16 courses, of which six are in English, four in philosophy, three in art, two in music and one in dramatic arts.

Spanish Philosopher to Speak At Lecture Series Tonight

Dr. Juan Lopez-Morillas

Dr. Juan Lopez-Morillas, chairman of the department of Spanish and Italian at Brown University, will be tonight's Visiting Scholar lecturer at 8 in Independence Hall.

Dr. Lopez-Morillas will speak on "Ortega y Gasset: A Portrait of the Philosopher as a Spectator of Life."

A native of Jaen, Spain, Dr. Lopez-Morillas studied at the University of Madrid and the University of Iowa. He taught at Harvard, Duke, and the University of Southern California before joining the Brown faculty 18 years ago.

He is the author of several articles, essays, reviews and books on contemporary Spanish literature and Spanish cultural history. Some of his textbooks have been used at URI.

He was awarded two Guggenheim fellowships for preparing a three-volume history of 19th-century Spain.

Ortega y Gasset, the topic of Dr. Lopez-Morillas' lecture, was an influential essayist and philosopher and author of "Revolt of the Masses," "Toward a Philosophy of History," and "The Dehumanization of Art."

Voluntary ROTC. But . . .

The question of a compulsory ROTC program on campus has again come to the fore. The Faculty Senate is on record as favoring its elimination. The Board of Trustees is considering it today.

The arguments against the compulsory program have been noteworthy:

1. Out of all the students who elect the advanced program, only a limited number are accepted.
2. The course as offered in the past has been considered over-simplified and often times boring to the disinterested students. With this attitude, instruction has been hampered and esprit de corps has been low.
3. Regarding subsequent military training, there is no advantage to participating in a compulsory program if the student does not go advanced. When the student enters the Regular Army after graduation, no consideration is given to the fact that he has had prior military instruction. Like any other enlistee, he must go through the same basic training.

In consideration of all these underlying factors, it is our opinion that a voluntary ROTC program with a compulsory first semester of orientation in the freshman year would be beneficial both to the university and the nation.

Under this compulsory orientation program, the student would receive an arbitrary number of credits and be required to attend classes in which he would be familiarized with the basic goals and advantages of the Army and ROTC. He would not be required to receive a uniform nor to participate in drill programs unless he wished to do so.

The student would acquire a sufficient knowledge of the ROTC program to enable him to make an intelligent decision about it. Under this plan, the regular freshman ROTC program would commence in the spring semester.

The morale and caliber of the participating cadets will be greatly improved. Also, the students would receive a clear and comprehensive picture of the military.

The security of America must be maintained; so must the independence of the scholar. America needs competent officers but it also needs qualified lawyers, scientists and educators who are not necessarily interested in directly incorporating the military in their studies. Let the students do well in that for which they have the interest and ability and we will have a strong nation.

Campus Mud Flats

One of the essential attributes of a university should be the orderly maintenance of the campus property. Does URI have this? Monday was a good example of the disorder and mess that can result on the campus when too little concern is given for its upkeep.

Following the rain Sunday evening, the land all over campus was water-logged. The paths leading to the women's dormitories behind Roosevelt Hall and to certain entrances of the men's dormitories were so soaked and soggy as to be unsafe to walk on.

It shows complete lack of regard for the welfare of the student when temporary mud paths that were laid in 1958 or earlier have still not been replaced. The least that should be done is for wooden planks to be laid over the muddy areas so that the students can make their way without running the risk of being mud-soaked.

It is a disgrace that the URI maintenance department thinks so little of the care and appearance of the campus as to let a situation like this continue. We hope the next time it rains, the maintenance department will be ready to take care of the situation properly.

by the National Student Association (NSA) of which the URI student Senate is a member. NSA has set up a special committee to organize a nationwide fund drive. URI, as well as other colleges across the nation, was asked to assist in the SNCC campaign.

In addition to the NSA, a group of students from Yale organized the Northern Student Movement (NSM) with the purpose of providing moral, physical and financial support to the Southern student movement. There are 50 New England college groups working with NSM.

In Rhode Island, groups have been formed at Brown, Pembroke, Rhode Island School of Design, Rhode Island College, Providence College, Bryant and the University of Rhode Island.

The URI fund drive is expected to take place during the week of February 12. Freedom buttons will be sold for $5.00. The green on white button titled "We Shall Overcome" has clasped a white hand and dark hood superimposed on a globe.

SOPHS TO MEET

A Sophomore class coffee hour will be held Feb. 15 at 7 p.m. in the Memorial Union Lounge.

The plans for the Sophomore Hop to be held March 17 will be discussed and tickets will be given to all housing unit representatives for distribution.

All interested Sophomores are urged to attend.

cal education programs be left as compulsory courses.

Commenting on the first senate report Dr. Walter L. Simmons, Faculty Senate chairman, said "there were several faculty members at that time who were dissatisfied with the report in that it combined the physical education and the ROTC programs. Many felt the ROTC program should be treated as a separate matter," he added.

The reasons listed in the minority report for support of the voluntary ROTC program are:

1. "In February, 1960, the Department of Defense states that 'in order for the Department of Defense to support a policy of favoring compulsory basis ROTC, a military requirement should exist for such a policy. Such a policy does not exist.'"

2. "As recently as April, 1961 the deputy secretary of defense Roswell L. Gilpatric, stated the department's position is 'based on an analysis of the estimated requirement for ROTC graduates during the remainder of this decade as compared with the projected college student population the same time frame.'"

3. "If we assume that the Department of Defense can best judge the nation's military needs, arguments by other citizens that compulsory ROTC is vital to our defense posture would appear doubtful."

4. "With the exception of military history, ROTC training during the first two years is reportedly over-simplified, boring and unchallenging to the students. Advanced ROTC, on the other hand, taken voluntarily by officer candidates, is evidently much better—suggesting that here is where the military heart really lies."

5. "Students completing basic ROTC are at virtually no advantage in their subsequent compulsory military training. The army keeps no central records of freshmen and sophomore ROTC trainees throughout the country. Upon induction by the draft into the army, no recognition in terms of rank, pay or training is made of men with two years' ROTC experience, although such men are sometimes selected as squad leaders in basic training."

6. "To subject practically all male students to a compulsory program in order to secure a handful of commissioned officers each year seems to us an unfair intrusion on the students' limited time and energy. Is it the proper function of a university to operate as an officer-recruiting agency?"

7. "Experience at schools which have recently shifted from compulsory to voluntary ROTC indicates that, with the exception of the University of Wisconsin, decreases in ROTC enrollment have not been as large as expected and the esprit de corps has improved."

Letters to the Editor

A Good Proposal?

In the "Providence Evening Bulletin" of Jan. 22, Dr. Nancy Potter reported on the academic expansion program of the College of Arts and Sciences. She did so as the chairman of a faculty committee studying the feasibility of establishing a general education program for "four out of five" URI students.

In proposing the rehabilitation of students outside the liberal arts swing, Dr. Potter claims the new program might generate some profound effects on the programs of some of the university's seven colleges, particularly those in nursing, pharmacy, engineering and agriculture.

Nursing, pharmacy and engineering will, I am sure, speak for themselves. As for agriculture, its administrators have for some time acknowledged the importance of the social and natural sciences, communications and humanities by providing its students with ample exposure to those areas of learning.

In fact, only a minor adjustment would be required to place the agricultural curriculum firmly in line with the faculty committee's total proposal.

The College of Agriculture has long recognized the need for "liberal" study in areas outside of the student's major field. For the benefit of interested parties, we go so far as to list the studies available in a publication entitled, "University of Rhode Island Bulletin," a volume readily accessible to the faculty, students, administrators—even to special committees.

I find it a bit awkward that state wide attention should be drawn to a matter that apparently eluded the faculty committee's attention.

It is also regrettable that the information had to appear in the newspapers before it was officially brought before the Faculty Senate. This premature release, I offer, is one communication skill we can well do without.

Voluntary ROTC Supported

Two years ago I voted for the continuation of required ROTC for freshmen and sophomores. At the last Faculty Senate meeting on Jan. 11, I supported the minority report that placed the Senate on record as favoring an elective system for the first two years.

Fundamentally, my stand on military training at institutions of higher education has not changed. I shall believe it important that URI contribute to the military effort by supplying topnotch officer cadre as required by the Departments of Defense and Army.

There are some that claim "it is not the proper function of a university to operate as an officer-recruiting agency." Certainly it is not the only function but it is an important function of this university. Where else do you get the large number of officers required—especially those with a civilian viewpoint?

It appears clear that this country should expect nothing less than first-rate men to lead other citizens in any national emergency that may arise. Certainly a university is a logical place to find the intelligence commensurate with their awful responsibility.

I suggest that it is now the responsibility of all students and faculty to show a lively constructive interest in seeing to it that we produce our share of officer personnel each year. You can prove that it is preferable and possible to obtain officers on a volunteer basis and lack!

Backstage

by Lonnie Torman

"You may get fighting mad, but you won't get bored," said Steve Travis last week as we were discussing the dramatic impact of "J. B." The Pulitzer prize-winning play by Archibald MacLeish will be presented by the University Theatre March 15-17.

Mr. Travis, who is directing the production, said "J. B." is probably the most important single play presented in this country in the last 20 or 30 years.

Immediately following its opening in New York in Dec. 1958, "J. B." aroused a wide controversy in literary and religious circles, where it was both praised for its sensitivity and condemned as blasphemy.

Poet MacLeish, Boylston Professor at Harvard, had previously won a Pulitzer Prize in 1953 for his collected verse.

"J. B." is a literary contribution in writing style. The play is in poetic verse and critic John Ciardi has hailed the poetry of MacLeish as the first verse form that "works" on stage.

The play is adapted from the Bible's magnificent and thorny story of Job.

The Book of Job has lived in men's minds for thousands of years. It is Job who asks for all mankind the crucial question: How can the world be justified? If the world is so unjust as we see it in our generation, how can its Creator be just?

It is understandable that MacLeish, seeking the answer to these questions, should have turned to the myth and Book of Job.

In "J. B." two broken-down actors are reduced to selling popcorn and balloons in a circus. In an effort to exercise their rusty talents and re-inflate their egos, they act out the parts of God and Satan after closing time on a side-show stage.

They don masks representing their characters and suddenly discover that they have crossed into a sort of Rod Sterling "twilight zone" and have stumbled through the play into reality. It is the reality of a Voice, not theirs, that knows the lines they mean to speak. It is also the human reality of a living, suffering Job, the "J. B." of the title.

"J. B." is a banker and industrialist. A successful family man, he is the possessor of great wealth and power. He is a confident, virtuous, admired and respected person. But, during the course of the play, all of this is taken from him.

It is at this point that he seeks the purpose of life, a life which his Creator has turned into a tragedy. It is his dramatic decision at the end of the play which conveys a substantial part of MacLeish's concept of the "raison d'être" of life.

The University Theatre's production of "J. B." features Bruce Olsen as J. B., Tom Hardy as Zuss, Steve Crowley as Nickles and Gilda Parella as Sarah.

Campus Events Are Planned

Two campus events have been planned by the Memorial Union Music and Arts Committee for the near future.

"The Scotchmen," a small ensemble of selected men's voices forming the core of the Springfield College Glee Club, will perform in the Memorial Union lounge on Sunday at 4 p.m. The free performance is open to the public.

The committee is sponsoring a bus trip to the American Shakespeare Festival Theatre at Stratford, Conn., May 5, for a special student performance of "Henry VI, Part I."

A chartered bus will leave the campus at 9:30 a.m. on May 5, carrying a limit of 39 students accompanied by two faculty members. Students interested are urged to make arrangements at the Union desk immediately because accommodations are limited.

Admission to the performance is $2 and the round trip bus fare is $3.60. Students are advised that the bus will make stops each way for meals.

Reservations will be made on a first come, first served basis upon payment of $5.60.

Annual Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament to be Conducted

Two bridge tournaments will be conducted by the Union Games Committee this month. On Monday, Feb. 12, the annual campus tournament will be played to select URI champions whose names will subsequently be inscribed on the plaques in the Game Room.

On Monday, Feb. 19, the 13th annual Intercollegiate Tournament will be played under the sponsorship of the Association of College Unions. Traveling trophies and plaques will be given the college participants winning national titles—one cup for the college of the team scoring highest on the East-West hands and one cup for the college of the North-South hand winners.

Prof. Kenneth Mairs of the URI faculty will act as tournament director for both events and the Intercollegiate Tournament will be judged and scored by William Root, contract bridge authority, who, along with Charles Green, noted bridge expert, will determine campus regional and national winners.

Bridge players, both graduate and undergraduate, are urged to sign up immediately at the Union Information Desk for either or both events. There is no entry fee for the campus tournament of Feb. 12. In order to enter the Intercollegiate tournament of Feb. 19, an entry fee of $1 must be paid at the time of registration. Both events will begin at 6:30 p.m.

WHAT ARE THE ADVANCEMENT OPPORTUNITIES AT DU PONT?

As a matter of fact, career opportunities at DuPont are excellent. One reason is the fact that the company is growing constantly—and growth creates new opportunities.

Consider, for example, that DuPont allocates over $90 million every year for research alone. Out of this grow new products that create new challenges. Then, too, DuPont is active in almost every phase of business and industry. Such diversified activity opens up many interesting jobs.

We believe that qualified bachelors, masters and Ph.D.'s will want to consider opportunities with us. Frats Begin Rush Period

Male URI freshmen interested in campus fraternities attended a smoker held by the Interfraternity Council last Sunday at Edwards Hall.

Officers of the IFC David Boylan, president; David Ricereto, vice president and David Brooks, secretary addressed the freshmen on the advantages of joining a fraternity, discussed fraternity finances, and stated the rules of formal rushing.

In order to become eligible for rushing and subsequent pledging to a fraternity the freshmen must have attained a 1.5 academic average for the fall semester and had to register with the IFC. During the formal rushing period, which begins next Monday, the rushees cannot attend any fraternity-sponsored party and no more than two fraternity members can visit a student's room. All rushing connected activities in the houses must be over by 7 p.m. during the three-week period.

The freshmen will meet at a convocation in Edwards Hall at 1 p.m. Saturday, March 3, to receive their bids. Each rushee will receive a sealed envelope containing his bids. He must choose his fraternity within a half hour during which no communication is allowed.

Following the smoker last Sunday, interested freshmen were invited to visit each fraternity represented on campus where they were introduced to house members and became acquainted with the fraternity and its rules.

IFC officers said they believe that through the smoker and the following mixer, the freshmen were given a better opportunity to become familiar with fraternity life at URI and to make themselves known at houses they are interested in joining.

Race Clauses to be Topic of Study

The URI Graduate Student Association last Monday night voted to appoint a committee to study discrimination clauses in the constitutions of fraternal organizations. The committee will submit its report at the association's meeting next month.

The vote was made after Fred Stern, a URI graduate assistant, read a report suggesting the association support the efforts of campus groups to improve housing for foreign and Negro students both on and off campus.

Mr. Stern said current off-campus housing lists are often discriminatory to Negro and foreign students in that the housing office now accepts listings which have restrictive clauses.

Mr. Stern said he believes the housing office will soon change its policy and accept only listings with "open vacancy clauses."

In other actions the association: Heard a report from the constitutional committee requesting a rewording of the motion creating the committee to provide it with more latitude in making constitutional changes.

Discussed the possibility of appointing a representative to observe Union Board meetings.

Agreed to send representatives to the Northern Student Conference to be held at URI Feb. 23-24.

There will be a coffee hour preceding the talk at 4:10 on the 4th floor of Ranger Hall.

The main feature of MERC Week will be the Twist party sponsored by the Associated Women's Student Council to be held Wednesday, Feb. 14 in the Ram's Den from 6:30 p.m.-8 p.m.

A Mr. Popularity contest will also be held and here are the rules:

1. As each girl leaves her housing unit to take out her favorite male, she is to leave her date's name at the desk of her housing unit.

2. The most popular boy as determined from the names left at each desk will be crowned "Mr. Popularity."

University Chorus Seeks Members

The University Chorus needs additional basses. Prof. Ward Abusamra, chorus director, said recently. He said that anyone interested in singing this part, as well as any others, are asked to meet with the Chorus on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 3 p.m. in Independence Hall auditorium.

Prof. Abusamra said that those who are interested in taking Chorus for credit are to see him in his office in Edwards Hall before going up for the credit.

Redmen Stun Rams Sat., 77-69. In Yankee Conference Tilt

The URI Rams were stunned last Saturday night at Amherst, Mass., when the Redmen from the University of Massachusetts were victorious 77-69 in a Yankee Conference tilt.

The big story of the evening took place at the foul line, where the Redmen scored 31 points to the Rams' 17; the Rams scored six more points from the field.

Massachusetts was led by sophomore Roger Twitchell, who scored 18 points, and Mike Mole with 14, including a 12-12 performance from the foul line.

The Rams lost three of their regulars on fouls. Charlie Lee fouled out with 4:30 to go, Captain Gary Koenig with about two minutes to go and Bob Logan with less than a minute left. Koenig was charged with three fouls within the first five minutes and sat out most of the first half as a precautionary measure. In all, he played less than 20 minutes.

Bob Logan was high scorer for the Rams with 26 points.

Rhody scored victories in the 137, 147 and 160-pound classes and also won in the heavyweight class by forfeit. Winners for the Rams included Charlie Nelson, John McIntosh, Adolph DiBiasio and Ray Corona.

The summary:

Indoor Track Team Places in Meets

The URI indoor track team has placed in several meets in the last few weeks. On Jan. 13, the team took one first place, a second and a fourth in the 36th annual Knights of Columbus track games held in Boston.

A team composed of Tony Alessandro, Marshall Gerstenblatt, Bill DiBattista and Karl Steimle placed first in the mile relay, while the URI frosh placed second in their mile relay, and Dick Carle finished fourth in the 50-yard dash. For the latter, it was a major achievement in that he was matched against Frank Budd from Villanova, world record holder in the 100-yard dash, doing it in 9.2 seconds.

In the Millrose games held Feb. 2, the mile track stars finished fourth, behind Boston University, Rutgers and Seton Hall.

In the Boston Athletic Association Games held the next night, the track team placed fourth again in the mile.

RAMbling along

by Alan Birkenfeld

As Frank W. Keaney was one of the major contributors to basketball as we know it today, with his fire-horse basketball, resulting in the high scoring games today, the greatest scorer in the history of this style was Stanley Stutz Modzelewski, when he played for Keaney. An outstanding driver, Stan's one weakness was a lack of a good outside shot, which affected his usefulness in professional basketball.

The greatest all around player under this system, according to Red Auerbach, coach of the Boston Celtics, was Ernie Calverley. "He was without a doubt the greatest passer down the middle of the fast break that the game has ever known. He could dribble at maximum, then jump in the air at the foul area and pass beautifully. He had the extraordinary ability of seeming to hang in the air almost forever. In addition, he had a fine outside shot. But he, too, lacked one essential item for success in professional basketball. With Ernie, it was frailness and lack of defensive training."

While the Providence Steam Rollers used the firehorse basketball in the beginning, these two college stars were outstanding. However, this system couldn't last due to the weak defense which ensued, and the lack of height, and Providence withdrew from the league.

Of Ernie's 1868 points, a school record, the most memorable came during the NIT during the 1945-46 season. During the quarter finals against Bowling Green, he fired a 55-foot field goal to tie the score and sent the contest into overtime, which the Rams won. They lost to Kentucky in the final, 46 - 45.

As a sophomore, Ernie led the country in scoring with an average of 26.7, including 534 points in 20 games. In his junior year, when the Rams lost to DePaul, with George Mikan in the semi-finals, Calverley scored 547 points in 23 games. In his final year, he scored 441 points. At the end of his senior year, Calverley was picked on the All-American third team.

After his playing days ended, Calverley coached in the Pawtucket school system, at Bryant College, and as the freshman coach at Providence College before returning to URI. During his first season, 1957-58, the Rams won only four games. In succeeding seasons, they have won eight, twelve, and last year, posted their best record in over ten years, finishing with an 18-9 record, and ending Connecticut's ten-year reign as Yankee Conference champions.

Returning to Madison Square Garden, the first time as a coach, Calverley led the Rams against third-ranked St. Bonaventure.

Coach Ernie Calverley has had a successful career as a player and coach, and many are sure that there are more fruitful years to come.

Calverley-Coach of The Year

Head Coach Ernie Calverley of the URI varsity basketball team was the recipient of the Coach of the Year award on Jan. 24 at a dinner attended by 300 persons, including Governor Notte. The award was made by Words Unlimited, an organization composed of Rhode Island sports writers and sports editors.

Calverley was the organization's first athlete-of-the-year back in 1946, and was the first ever to receive two separate awards from the organization. The award was presented to him by Bill Cawley of the Westerly Sun in recognition of the fact that URI won the Yankee Conference crown last season and won a place in the NCAA tournament.

Tom Doherty, Words Unlimited president, and publicity director for URI and the Yankee Conference, was the master of ceremonies at the dinner.

P. C. Here Next Tuesday Night

The URI varsity basketball team has three big non-conference games coming up in the following week, the opponents being Colgate, Friday at Hamilton, N. Y., St. Bonaventure, Saturday in Buffalo, and Providence College here at Kingston on Tuesday.

Colgate is led by junior Bob Duffy, the Red Raiders' high scorer last season with a 20.4 average and the highest scoring sophomore in the school's history. A leading candidate for All-East honors this season, Bob is the second member of Colgate's 500 point club. With only five returning lettermen, Colgate will have to rely on Duffy to improve on the last season's record of 14-12. The first time Rhody played Colgate was in 1954, and the overall record between the two teams is 1-1. Other starters should include John Doyle, Dan Raabe, Mel Watkins and Carl McNamara.

Faced with a rebuilding problem, including a new coach and new starting lineup, St. Bonaventure has fought back to regain their stature as one of the best teams in the country this season. Last year, the Bonnies were third in the country, led by Tom Stith and Fred Crawford—the former has graduated, while the latter is out for the year with tuberculosis. However, new coach Larry Weise has molded his team around sophomore Miles Aiken and veterans Orrie Jirele, Tom Hannon, Bob McCully and Barry Herbert, to become one of the high scoring teams in the nation. Aiken has averaged 24.1 through the first half of the season, including 36 points against Louisville, 35 against Bellarmine and 31 against Villa Madonna. McCully has scored 28 points against Belmont Abbey to provide additional support. Last season URI faced the Bonnies in the first round of the NCAA tourney, and, after Rhody was leading by five points at halftime, the Bonnies fought back to win 85-76.

The big game will take place here at Kingston, when URI seeks revenge in their encounter with Providence College as they were defeated in overtime in December, 68-65. After being down by as much as 14 points in the first half, the Rams fought back to lead the Friars by nine with five minutes remaining, but Rhody couldn't hold the lead. A freshman affair will open the festivities at 8:30.

Frosh Tennis

Any male student who desires to try out for the freshman tennis team, and who is a member of the freshman class (provided that he has not previously attended another collegiate institution) is requested to report to coach Fred D. Tootell in 109 Keaney Gym as soon as possible.

Massachusetts Over Rhody Again, 73-62, Last Night

The Rams lost another heart-breaker to the University of Mass. last night at Keaney Gym, this time the score being 73-62, before 2,800 spectators.

Don Bernard, Roger Twitchell and Mike Mole led the visitors in scoring, having 53 points among them. Dave Ricereto had 21 points for the Rams, while Bobby Logan added 15.

The score at halftime was 36-29 in favor of the Redmen. Then, the Rams came fighting back with the aid of Ricereto, Logan and Ron Rothstein, but Gary Koenig fouled out with 13 minutes remaining, followed subsequently by Logan and Ricereto, and the picture was complete. At one time, Rhody was leading 42-41, but Mike Mole and Don Bernard scored on twenty-foot jump shots, to send the Redmen ahead to stay.

For URI, the loss was a bitter one to take, for they had to relinquish their hold on first place in the Yankee Conference for the first time in two seasons. Massachusetts now leads the Conference with a 4-1 record, followed by Rhody, 4-2.

In the opener, the Ramlets defeated the University of Hartford, 98-62, after being ahead at halftime, 47-22.

Johnny Mulfinger led the scoring with 23 points on nine field goals and five charity tosses. Steve Chubin added 20 points, and Danny McGovern, 19.

Lee Leads Rams Past Colby

The URI varsity basketball team, with high scoring performances from Charlie Lee, Captain Gary Koenig, Dave Ricereto and Bob Logan, defeated Colby College last Thursday 85-74 before 3,000 fans at Keaney Gym.

Coming after a three-week lay-off, the Rams came out fighting, and by the middle of the second half, enjoyed a 20-point lead. Charlie Lee, enjoying one of his better nights, sank 10 of 19 for his total of 21 points.

Coach Lee Williams, now in his 16th season at the Maine college, was impressed with the work of Lee, Ricereto and Logan. "Those fellows all had good shooting games," Williams said, "and Koenig's work especially on the backboards, just made it so much tougher for us."

The Rams led at halftime 41-33. In the earlier game, the Ramlets beat the Davisville Seabees 107-45. Bill McCaughey, 22, Dennis McGovern and Steve Chubin, each 19, and Mike Fayerweather, 10, led the scoring.

IS STUDYING NECESSARY?

Once there were three roommates and their names were Walter Pellucid, Casimir Fing, and LeRoy Holocaust and they were all taking English lit. and they were all happy, friendly, outgoing types and they all smoked Marlboro Cigarettes as you would expect from such a gregarious trio, for Marlboro is the very essence of sociability, the very spirit of amity, and very soul of concord, with its tobacco so mild and flavorful, its pack so king-size and flip-top, its filter so pure and white, and you will find when you smoke Marlboros that the world is filled with the song of birds and no man's hand is raised against you.

Each night after dinner Walter and Casimir and LeRoy went to their room and studied English lit. For three hours they sat in sombre silence and pored over their books and then, squinty and spent, they toppled onto their pallets and sobbed themselves to sleep.

This joyless situation obtained all through the first semester. Then one night they were all simultaneously struck by a marvelous idea. "We are all studying the same thing," they cried. "Why, then, should each of us study for three hours? Why not each study for one hour? It is true we will only learn one-third as much that way, but it does not matter because there are three of us and next June before the exams, we can get together and pool our knowledge!"

Oh, what rapture then fell on Walter and Casimir and LeRoy!

They flung their beanies into the air and danced a gavotte and lit thirty or forty Marlboros and ran out to pursue the pleasure which had so long, so bitterly, been missing from their lives.

Alas, they found instead a series of grisly misfortunes. Walter, alas, went searching for love and was soon going steady with a coed named Invicta Breadstuff, a handsome lass, but, alas, hopelessly addicted to bowling. Each night she bowled five hundred lines, some nights a thousand. Poor Walter's thumb was a shambles and his purse was empty, but Invicta just kept on bowling and in the end, alas, she left Walter for a pin-setter, which was a terrible thing to do to Walter, especially in this case, because the pin-setter was automatic.

Walter, of course, was far too distraught to study his English lit, but he took some comfort from the fact that his roommates were studying and they would help him before the exams. But Walter, alas, was wrong. His roommates, Casimir and LeRoy, were nature lovers and they used their free time to go for long tramps in the woods and one night, alas, they were treed by two bears, Casimir by a brown bear and LeRoy by a kodak, and they were kept in the trees until spring set in and the bears went to Yellowstone for the tourist season.

So when the three roommates met before exams to pool their knowledge, they found they had none to pool! Well, sir, they had a good long laugh about that and then rushed to the kitchen and stuck their heads in the oven. It was, however, an electric oven and the effects were, on the whole, beneficial. The wax in their ears got melted and they acquired a healthy tan and today they are married to a lovely young heiress named Gargia Bran and live in the Canal Zone, where there are many nice boats to wave at.

In case you worry about such things, their wife is a Marlboro smoker, too, which adds to the general merriment. Marlboro is ubiquitous, as well as flavorful, and you can buy them in all 50 states as well as the Canal Zone.
